I am on drugs today (actually no sleep = same effect). I meant we don't want OEMs to block access, just corps.

Correct, we don't want corps to be able to remove access.

As a corporate issue our corporate kit will allow a corporation to block access to Windows Update for their users. I am not sure how our Corporate kits are handled with OEMs. I think we will not want an OEM to disable access to Windows Update. My understanding was this was the point of the co-branding which we discussed.

Tom,

At our mtgs. about the Wizard you indicated that Dell would be free to disable it and that Microsoft would expose the registry key and value necessary to do that. Would you please confirm by reply to this mail?
Thanks
