Auctions . . . Values . . . Meeting your needs . . . Only a click away!

Looking to save money buying from government surplus auctions? The good news is you can! It is easier than ever to access sales opportunities on hundreds of items – such as cars, buses, boats, jewelry, furniture, and electronics, any time. Private citizens and businesses can find huge savings on items no longer needed by civilian federal agencies.

The cost-savings to the taxpayer are realized because the proceeds from selling items help to offset the cost of running the government.

Now, that's recycling at its best!

It's Easier Than Ever to Purchase Used Government Property!

1. Visit the online home of GSA Auctions® at www.gsaauctions.gov, where you will find a wide variety of personal property for sale, including item descriptions and images. This award-winning online auction site features electronic bidding, bid by proxy, electronic payment, and instant feedback.
2. Visit <http://www.GovSales.gov>, your one-stop source for all items available from Federal Asset Sales. This website serves as a gateway to help you view items the government has available for purchase. Upon entering the site, you will discover that the items for sale cover a wide range of categories, including personal and real property.

Disclaimers:

GSA does not guarantee the condition of its sale items. You are encouraged to inspect property physically prior to sale, at which time you would learn of any item deficiencies that are known. Nonetheless, GSA cannot be responsible for problems that may be identified after the sale.

Conditions of Sale:

GSA sells used personal property according to the U.S. government's Standard Form 114C, General Sale Terms and Conditions and Special Terms and Conditions. You may review a copy at any of the GSA regional sales offices or at the GSA Auctions® website at www.gsaauctions.gov under the "Terms and Conditions" portion.

How to Find Out About Our Sales:

- You can obtain information about upcoming sales by visiting www.gsa.gov or www.gsaauctions.gov.
- At times, we advertise in local newspapers and on the radio, and we sometimes post notices in public buildings.
- Highly specialized items or those of national interests are announced in national newspapers, trade journals and periodicals.
- Information about other federal sales programs is also found in publications listed in the federal Consumer Information catalog. For a copy, please call (888) 8PUEBLO/(888) 878-3256 or visit www.pueblo.gsa.gov.

Payment and Removal

GSA accepts payment in a variety of forms, including U.S. currency (no greater than $10,000); bank cashier's checks; money orders; traveler's checks; U.S. federal, state or local government checks; credit cards and online payment through the Department of Treasury's electronic payment service via GSA Auctions.

Purchasers are required to remove their items within the time prescribed for each sale, after payment is made. If a purchaser fails to pay and/or remove the merchandise by the prescribed timeframe, the liquidated damages ($200 or 20 percent of the purchase price, whichever is greater) will be assessed to the purchaser.
