As requested at our meeting in Washington last Thursday, we are enclosing some suggestions for handling the various sections of the White Paper.

It is not necessarily contemplated that any person handling a specific section should personally have to do the work involved. Rather, it is hoped that they could utilize outside consulting help and, where feasible, the help of experts within individual companies.

In suggesting particular people for certain jobs, we have endeavored to take into account known preferences and known areas of expertise.

Best regards,
