RUSTIC CABINS of the Intermountain Region

2004 - 2005

Intermountain Region

23.169.400.02/93
Revised/Reprint 2004

---

Rustic guard stations and cabins once used by Forest Rangers of the Intermountain Region can now be rented by visitors to our National Forests.

The Intermountain Region includes 13 National Forests, covering all of Utah and Nevada, southern Idaho, as well as southwest Wyoming.

With few exceptions, the rental cabins are rustic and primitive. Many are in remote locations offering beautiful scenery clear air. Wildlife is abundant in natural settings.

These facilities belong to the American people. They are our treasures of times past—a direct link to the very environment their users worked so hard to protect. They are yours to use, but, also yours to protect.

During your visit, I urge you to be sensitive to the condition of the land and the facilities you use. Don't leave litter—pack out what you pack in. Always ensure fires are dead out before leaving. Leave the facilities in the best condition possible so future users can enjoy their stay.

This brochure provides basic information about cabins available to you, with more specific information regarding the rental process. Please contact any of the Forest Service offices listed for more information.

As Regional Forester of the Intermountain Region, I invite you to enjoy these facilities and share our American heritage. Enjoy the scenic variety and beauty of the National Forests, and, have a safe and enjoyable stay.

GENERAL INFORMATION

Making Reservations

The recreational cabins in the National Forests of the Intermountain Region are available for use on a first-come, first-served basis, but RESERVATIONS ARE REQUIRED. Reservations may be made in person, by mail, or by phone, by contacting the specific Ranger District listed.

If NRRS (the National Recreation Reservation Service) is listed as the means for reserving a specific cabin, reservations must be made by phone at 1-877-444-6777 or TDD 1-877-833-6777, or online at www.reserveusa.com.

Facilities

The cabins available through the rental program are rustic and primitive. These facilities were once used as guard stations and fire lookouts by Forest Rangers of the Intermountain Region. Most cabins are located in remote areas, generally accessible via narrow, winding, dirt or gravel roads. With the exception of a few cabins, there are no modern conveniences or the safeguards of modern society – no telephones, traffic jams, neighbors, and no emergency services.

When making reservations, inquire about what is or is not furnished with the cabin or lookout. The facilities are generally equipped with the bare basics, including a table, chairs, wood stove and bunks (most with mattresses, some without). Bedding is not furnished. Cooking utensils are available at some cabins, but not all. Electricity and piped-in water are generally not available. It may be necessary to bring in safe drinking water, or be prepared to chemically treat or boil water for consumption. At some cabins, you will need to find and cut your own firewood. Expect to use outdoor privies.

Potential Risks

Travel on the National Forests and use of rustic cabins or lookouts involves a degree of risk. Recreationists must assume responsibility of obtaining the knowledge and skills necessary to protect themselves from injury and illness. Weather, road conditions, personal preparation and other factors can influence travel time and difficulty. Weather changes rapidly in the backcountry. Visitors may encounter sudden storms, including lightning, as well as cold, unexpected temperatures. Responsible preparation is essential.

Before the trip, we advise you to contact the local Ranger District for current conditions of facilities and accessibility.

Cleanup

Before leaving, all users are requested to: make certain ALL fires are out; pack out all garbage, including empty bottles or cans; clean the cabin; and leave a supply of firewood.

The U.S. Department of Agriculture (USDA) prohibits discrimination in all its programs and activities on the basis of race, color, national origin, sex, religion, age, disability, political beliefs, sexual orientation, or means for communication of program information (Braille, large print, audio tape, etc.) should contact USDA's TARGET Center at (202) 720-2600 (voice and TDD).

To file a complaint of discrimination, write USDA, Director, Office of Civil Rights, Room 326-W, Whitten Building, 1400 Independence Avenue SW, Washington D.C., 20250-9410 or call (202) 720-5964 (voice and TDD). USDA is an Equal Opportunity provider and employer.

IDAHO

Idaho is known as the “Gem State” because of the semi-precious gem stones, particularly star garnets, found in conjunction with several of the numerous mining districts within the State. Idaho is what America once was: pristine, uncrowded, and undiscovered . . . a perfect place to spend a vacation in a Forest Service cabin.

UTAH

Utah is known as the “Bee Hive State” because of the hard, industrious workers who pioneered and settled the State. Utah is a unique blend of cultural attractions, historical sites, recreational adventures, and most of all, widely-varied landscapes. From the colorful slick rock canyons and buttes of southern Utah to rugged mountains in the north, its scenic and recreational attractions are unique.

No Forest Service cabins or lookouts are available in Nevada.

Nevada is known as the "Silver State." Its rich silver mines, such as the Comstock Lode near Virginia City, was the first of several mining booms in the State. Outside the glittering cities of Reno and Las Vegas, there is a timeless land where nature has crafted magnificent mountain ranges, canyons, and valleys. This is a land of wide-open spaces.

Wyoming is known as the "Cowboy State" because of its wild west heritage. The very name conjures images of towering mountains, unique natural features, wild, free-roaming wildlife, and a colorful past. The geography is as diverse as the many outdoor recreational opportunities awaiting the visitor. Mountains, deserts, grasslands, high plains, and wild rivers are all present within the State.
