Foreign Language Training

Multimedia Courses

Affordable, Quality Language Training Material Available from the National Audiovisual Center at the National Technical Information Service
Dear Customer,

The foreign language training courses in this catalog have helped thousands of diplomatic and military personnel prepare for living, working and traveling around the world. These training materials are produced by the State Department's National Foreign Affairs Training Center, the Defense Department's Defense Language Institute, the Center for the Advancement of Language Learning, Intelecom, and the Central Intelligence Agency.

These tried and proven language training courses are now available from one source to businessmen, educators, and travelers. Businessmen consistently find they are much more successful when they can speak their counterparts' language. Educators are keenly aware how important learning other languages is to breaking down barriers to creating a global community. Any traveler will tell you that you always get far more out of your visit when you know the local language.

These top quality courses are available to you through the National Audiovisual Center at the National Technical Information Service, the only source officially authorized by the producing agencies to distribute these courses. Only the official agency master tapes are used in our courses, and all our tapes correspond accurately to the accompanying text.

These courses are complete and comprehensive, not altered or condensed in any way. They contain audiocassettes, videotapes, CD-ROM's, and texts for self-instruction or classroom use.

So expand your horizons by learning a new language. As you can see on the next page, the languages we have can take you anywhere in the world.

Sincerely,

Janice Coe
National Audiovisual Center at NTIS

P.S. For those of you in military or aerospace fields, I would like to point out the Multilingual Military Dictionary (7 languages with both NATO and Russian/ex-Warsaw Pact terms) and the Multilingual Space Dictionary (15 languages). See page 20 for details.
Explanation of Terms

This catalog features audio and video self-instructional language training programs produced by the National Foreign Affairs Training Center of the U.S. Department of State, the Defense Language Institute of the U.S. Department of Defense, the Center for the Advancement of Language Learning, and the Central Intelligence Agency. Courses are available from the NTIS’ National Audiovisual Center with or without texts. The audiocassette programs are recorded in 2-Track, mono, meaning that material is recorded on both sides of the cassette. Some language courses have words in their titles such as basic, programmatic, and introductory. The following glossary should assist you in selecting the course that will meet your needs:

Active Introduction: A mini-course, covering the first 100-300 hours of training that includes oral exercises. All lessons include short verbal exchanges.

Basic: The courses that present all essential grammar of a spoken language. These courses typically include samples of speech, explanations of basic language structure, and a variety of practical exercises.

FAST (Familiarization and Short-Term Training): The course is designed to familiarize you with the country, the everyday situations visitors encounter and provides the needed language skills to handle each situation.

Headstart: The course teaches you how to handle everyday situations. The emphasis is on speaking and understanding the language.

Introduction to Pronunciation: Consists only of an introduction to the pronunciation of a language.

Introductory: A mini-course, covering the first 100-300 hours of training. It presents a selection of the most frequently occurring grammatical patterns in a language.

Modular: The course is organized into modules that focus on particular situations or language topics. This allows a certain amount of choice as to what is taught and in what order.

Phonology: A programmed introduction to the most frequently occurring grammatical patterns in the language. The emphasis here is on pronunciation.

Programmed: Presents all the essential grammar of the language and provides aids to self-evaluation. The student sets the pace of the learning process. New material is presented in "frames," one idea at a time.

Programmatic: Similar to a programmed course, but somewhat less material featured in the programmed format.

U.S. Government Proficiency Scale: Assesses linguistic skills in listening, speaking, and reading based on a proficiency scale ranging from Level 0 (essentially no ability in a language) to Level 5 (an educated native speaker of the language). Each level has a plus (+) through 4+, indicating proficiency that substantially exceeds one skill level but does not fully meet the next level.

Arabic

Arabic is spoken by 1/5 of the world’s population and is one of the official languages of the United Nations. It is also becoming increasingly important for trade and industry.

Al-Mumtaaz
Produced by the Federal Language Training Laboratory

This is an award-winning, ten-unit, interactive CD-ROM with almost two hours of high-quality video filmed on location with professional actors in an Arabic-speaking country. Native speakers on CD-quality audio introduce Arabic sounds, basic vocabulary, useful expressions, introductory grammar, script, culture, and history. The program centers around a group of tourists who travel to a fictitious Arab country where they learn basic language skills in 300 engaging and interactive learning exercises including greetings, asking and following directions, reading signs, making telephone calls, ordering food, and carrying out other everyday tasks, all presented within authentic, practical cultural contexts. While it focuses on Modern Standard Arabic, Al-Mumtaaz also introduces Levantine, Egyptian, and Arabian dialects. Students can record and compare their pronunciation with that of a native speaker, take part in simulated conversations with Al-Mumtaaz characters, and generate and print vocabulary for study. Designed for self-study or classroom use, this program is also useful as a refresher or the front end of a more advanced course. It uses the latest technology to make the user proficient in this important language.

This set of six CD-ROMs was awarded the CINE Golden Eagle, 38th CINDY international (silver) and regional (gold) medals, and National Association of Government Communicators Gold Screen Competition 2d place.

Iraqi Dialect Orientation Course
(Operation Desert Shield)
Produced by the Defense Language Institute

This course is designed as a supplement to existing Arabic materials; it is anticipated that students of this course will include both non-Modern Standard Arabic speakers and Modern Standard Arabic graduates who are unfamiliar with the Iraqi dialect.

The course consists of 11 lessons: lesson 1 focuses on pronunciation and introduces Iraqi dialect sounds; lessons 2 through 11 are designed around selected topic areas that highlight common situations one might expect to encounter. Topics covered include: greeting, giving information, courtesy phrases and expressions, numbers, time expressions, and the weather.

The learning activities for most lessons are: transliteration, vocabulary, and lessons.

Levantine Arabic Introduction to Pronunciation
Produced by the National Foreign Affairs Training Center

The Levantine Arabic course consists only of an introduction to the pronunciation of the language. It refers to the dialect of educated Palestinians around Beirut, Lebanon, but is intelligible in most urban areas of Lebanon, Syria, Jordan, and Israel. Since most of the sounds of Levantine Arabic also occur in other Arabic dialects, the course can also be used in the study of those dialects.

Modern Written Arabic
Produced by the National Foreign Affairs Training Center

Though there is considerable diversity of dialects in spoken Arabic, the written language is fairly standard with the differences falling into historical periods rather than geographical areas. The emphasis in the Modern Written Arabic course is on reading modern printed Arabic. However, before attempting this, it is necessary to learn the Arabic writing system and have reasonably accurate pronunciation. The course provides spoken exercises in Arabic and the printed transcriptions that are essential to achieving mastery of the material.

Saudi Arabic Basic Course – Urban Hijazi Dialect
Produced by the National Foreign Affairs Training Center

Of the three major dialects in Saudi Arabic – Hijazi, Najidi, and Sharqi – Hijazi is used throughout the country for government and commercial purposes, and has become the most widely understood dialect in the Arabian Peninsula. Even so, there is no "standard" Hijazi dialect, but the basis for the Saudi Arabic Basic Course is “urban” Hijazi, to distinguish it from the Bedouin dialects also native to the region. The aim of the course is “working” proficiency in the language. The course enables you to speak and understand Saudi Arabic speech at a normal rate in a variety of social and business contexts.

Saudi Arabic Headstart
Produced by the Defense Language Institute

This course is designed to help you communicate with Saudis in several basic situations and to enable you to exchange common courtesies that are essential in Arab countries. The course is divided into 8 modules, plus a student guide and a cumulative glossary. Topics discussed are: greetings, introductions, directions, business meetings, inviting people, problems on the road, and shopping.

Each module is divided into two lessons. The learning activities for most modules are: objectives, conversations, notes on conversations, additional vocabulary, speaking exercises, self-evaluation tests, and glossary. Cultural notes include information on the land, the people and their history, the religion, the lifestyle and social customs, things to do and things not to do, your living situation, notes for female dependents, Yemen, and recommended reading.

Syrian Arabic Through Video
Produced as a collaborative effort between the Georgetown University Arabic Department and the Center for the Advancement of Language Learning

This unique course enables students to learn Syrian Arabic through authentic video. Filmed mostly in Damascus, the course uses only native speakers of the dialect. Task-based activities on a variety of topics help build listening comprehension skills at the intermediate level (1+ to 2+ on the U.S. government proficiency scale).

The course uses authentic materials and task-based activities to build proficiency emphasizes listening comprehension, requires only a VCR and an audiocassette player, and is designed for self-study as well as classroom use.

The course is arranged into 10 modules, each with a different topic. The topics include: social encounters and arranging appointments, telephone situations, getting around, bargaining and negotiating, social interaction, and politics and economics.

The complete course comes with a student workbook, teacher’s guide and answers, resource book, transcripts, and supplemental materials. The individual components can be purchased separately.

Armenian

Task-Based Approach to Armenian
Produced by Center for the Advancement of Language Learning/Monterey Institute of International Studies

This program of language instruction will take students on a journey that will take them into areas of Armenian culture, history, art, day-to-day life and the forces that drive the very existence of the Armenian people. Language can not be studied in a vacuum. It is the understanding of how and why language is used in relation to the culture that makes acquisition possible. This course is designed to help students develop functional skills in the Armenian language, not just a 'textbook knowledge' of words, grammar features, and memorized dialogues. In order to help the students reach a goal of effective performance, this course incorporates language learning techniques that are directed towards building a confidence in using the language in a natural setting. Some examples of these techniques include the use of real-world tasks, communicative activities, authentic materials, and spiralizing of content and structures.

Cambodian

Cambodian Basic Course
Produced by the National Foreign Affairs Training Center

This course examines two different Cambodian dialects: Standard Cambodian and the Phnom Penh dialect. Standard Cambodian is the approved speech for public education and mass communications. Of all the Cambodian dialects, it corresponds most closely to the writing system. The Phnom Penh dialect is spoken in the country's capital city. It differs sharply from the Standard Cambodian in pronunciation but is similar in other aspects. Being familiar with both styles of speech will enable students to speak and understand the language better.

This course contains 90 units, arranged in groups of five under a common theme. The first four units of each group are based on dialogues and the fifth unit is based on a narration. The text for units 1-20 is entirely in standard Cambodian. Starting with unit 21, the dialogues are in the Phnom Penh dialect, and the narration is in Standard Cambodian. Each of the 90 units includes: dialogues, drills and vocabulary sections.

Contemporary Cambodian — Introduction
Produced by the National Foreign Affairs Training Center

This course is designed for beginning students who are interested in studying how to read and speak Cambodian. Each of the 60 lessons contains: dialogues, drills and vocabulary lists. The first 45 lessons cover general topics such as: food, going to the doctor, and transportation.

The remaining 15 lessons cover military topics that are valuable to nonmilitary students because the vocabulary introduced in these lessons will be found in newspapers, magazines, and everyday conversations.

The course text also includes questions to test your comprehension of the recorded dialogues and a comprehensive glossary.

Contemporary Cambodian — Intermediate

Contemporary Cambodian also includes three intermediate level modules. These modules can be studied in any order. Vocabulary and grammar studied in one module will assist you in the other modules. After completing any module, the time needed per lesson decreases for subsequent modules.

Contemporary Cambodian — The Land and the Economy

The 15 lessons in this module include: the fish industry, the climate, the land, natural resources and the government's role in the economy.

Contemporary Cambodian — The Social Institutions

The 15 lessons in this module include: the education system, health services for the rich and poor, early Cambodian history, the Buddhist religion, and ancient and modern rites and holidays.

Contemporary Cambodian — Political Institutions

The 16 lessons in this module include: local government, provincial and state government elections, the legislature, and the constitution and laws.

Chinese

Cantonese Basic Course

Produced by the National Foreign Affairs Training Center

Cantonese is the principal language of the Kwangtung province in Southeast China, parts of the Kwangsi province and of Hong Kong and Macao. In addition, Cantonese is spoken by ethnic Chinese in Vietnam, Cambodia, Laos, Singapore and Malaysia. Almost all Americans of Chinese descent in the United States are of Cantonese origin.

This course deals with daily life in Hong Kong and includes samples of speech, explanations of basic language structure, and a variety of practical exercises. Each of the 30 lessons contains: basic conversations, grammar and cultural notes, pattern drills, conversations for listening, and “Say it in Cantonese,” that provides English-to-Cantonese practice. Also included with the course are vocabulary checklists and a cumulative glossary.

Standard Chinese: A Modular Approach

Produced by the National Foreign Affairs Training Center and the Defense Language Institute

The focus of this course is on understanding in practical situations Mandarin Chinese, the official dialect of the People’s Republic of China. The material is organized into modules that deal with particular situations or language topics. You select the modules that you want to study in the order that you prefer.

It is recommended that at least the first three modules (Orientation, Biographic Information, and Money) and the resource module be studied to achieve basic proficiency in the language.

In many cases, two of the Standard Chinese modules share the same text and workbooks. Students should order one module with texts and the other module without texts. Modules that share texts are: modules 1 and 2, modules 3 and 4, and modules 5 and 6.

<td>The Chinyanja Basic Course presents all the essential grammar of the spoken language of Malawi. It is divided into two main parts. The first consists of Units 1-40 and the second of Units 41-63. The first part emphasizes those words and sentences that students are most likely to need during their first few weeks in Malawi. The principal points of grammar are introduced, but they are not treated systematically, and there are few drills. In the second part the materials from Units 1-40 are reintroduced. This time, however, the units are longer, and more attention is given to mastery of the grammatical devices of the language. Each lesson includes dialogues and notes.</td>

Crossroads Café

The series is the result of collaboration between INTELECOM the states of California, Florida, Illinois and New York; the U.S. Department of Education; the U.S. Immigration & Naturalization Service; and the U.S. Information Agency. Crossroads Café is an educational video and print series designed for multi-level ESL/ESOL instruction. The series revolves around a café in a large U.S. city where the lives of six characters come together. Each episode in the series features a language and U.S. culture learning aid.

It is the first language course to be presented in this television series format. Two video sidebars are included in each episode: Culture Clips and Word Play which emphasize U.S. culture and language patterns. Culture Clips are available separately. Teachers will also find many ways to use the verbatim transcripts of each video episode, from role playing scenes to creating dialogue exercises.

The course received the Gold Cindy Award, Association of Visual Communicators; Best Distance Learning Program, USDLA; and the Erasmus Bridge Award, The Rotterdam Market. A follow on course, On Common Ground, is an anthology of fifteen powerful real-life dramas and closely correlated, multi-level text materials that focus on fundamental concepts in U.S. civics and government.

C'est Tres Facile: Survival French (CD-ROM)
Produced by Foreign Language Training Laboratory

C'est Tres Facile, a ten-unit multimedia course videotaped in France is designed to bring students to a survival level of proficiency in the language. Features of the program include student tracking and the ability to print personalized lists of words and phrases. Students can record and play back recordings to compare their pronunciation with that of a native speaker. Students practice listening, reading, and speaking. C'est Tres Facile is suitable for a very broad audience of students who need to learn, review or maintain basic French. Based on a story line that begins at a farewell party in Washington, DC, several of C'est Tres Facile’s characters begin a friendship that continues throughout a subsequent visit to Paris. C'est Tres Facile’s learning activities allow students to interact with a journalist, a restaurant owner, a diplomat, and some of their French relatives. As students increase their mastery they become more involved in the lives of the characters and use their newly acquired French skills to help them get settled in an apartment, find their way around Paris, and even deal with a family’s surprise inheritance from a relative. Students learn to order meals, ask and follow directions, register at hotels, scan newspapers and request and give personal information. Although designed for self-study, this course can be used for maintenance or as a refresher.

Hungarian Basic Course
Produced by the National Foreign Affairs Training Center

The Hungarian Basic Course is written to provide students with the basic structure of the spoken language and a vocabulary to make limited practical use of both the spoken and written language while in Hungary. The course is intended to be colloquial, and emphasis is placed on idiomatic use and proper pronunciation of the spoken language. However, it also provides grammatical notes and instructions in the use of the written language. Each unit includes a set of basic sentences, notes to the basic sentences, notes on pronunciation, notes on grammar, transformation drills, variation drills, vocabulary drills, translation drills, response drills, conversation practice, and additional situations that are brief descriptions that promote free conversation.

The Hungarian Graded Reader is designed to develop reading ability in Hungarian by using audio material with the text with minimum recourse to translation. The 56 reading selections are arranged to follow students’ progression from the beginning through the intermediate stages of reading proficiency. This text will supplement a beginning course in Hungarian or as part of an intermediate course.

KITUBA

KITUBA BASIC COURSE
Produced by the National Foreign Affairs Training Center

Kituba, also known as Kikongo ya Leta and Munukutuba, is a vehicular or trade language spoken along the lower reaches of the Congo and its tributaries. The Kituba Basic Course consists of a “primer” in the language and five subject-oriented groups of lessons. The primer is intended to introduce the major grammatical structures of the language, to develop in the student an adequate pronunciation, and to present a certain amount of useful vocabulary for a variety of situations. The subject-oriented lessons build on the vocabulary and grammar presented in the primer. Each unit in the primer consists of a short dialogue, variation drills, a vocabulary supplement, grammar notes, and grammar drills. In subsequent units, the dialogue is supplemented with a short narrative. Notes in these units are rare and there are no drills.

Lao

Reading Lao: A Programmed Introduction
Produced by the National Foreign Affairs Training Center

Laotian is basically monosyllabic and tonal, but there has been extensive borrowing from Sanskrit and Pali at different periods in history. Almost all polysyllabic words relating to government, the Court, Buddhism, science, and philosophy are of Sanskrit or Pali origin. The Reading Lao course is designed to teach you to read newspaper articles, short stories, technical descriptions of moderate difficulty, literary narratives, political speeches, and other materials of similar difficulty.

Moré

Moré Basic Course
Produced by the National Foreign Affairs Training Center

Moré, the major language of Western Africa, is spoken principally in Upper Volta. The Moré Basic Course is divided into three cycles. Cycle one is devoted mainly to socially useful expressions and to general notes on social usage and the major points of grammar. Cycle two concentrates on developing fuller control of the language structure within the context of high frequency situations. Cycle three presents additional materials for comprehension and conversation practice aimed at the consolidation of skills developed in cycle two. Units 1-37 include basic sentences, general notes, and drills. Units 38-48 are organized by topics such as the weather, school, and traveling.

Khorosho: Introduction to Russian
(CD-ROM)
Produced by the Foreign Language Training Lab.

Khorosho integrates video, audio, audio recording and playback, graphics, and text imaginatively into entertaining, interactive exercises that maintain student motivation and heighten retention. This software-only, five-unit CD-ROM program was designed for self-study, but may also be used for maintenance, as a refresher, as the front end of a more advanced course, or as part of a traditional classroom curriculum. Khorosho features characters that interact in a variety of practical situations while traveling in Russia. As the characters navigate through a series of plots and subplots, students become familiar with the Cyrillic alphabet and master the sounds of Russian. They learn to greet, make introductions, ask and follow directions, count from 1-20, ask for and provide personal information and name colors, personal belongings and days of the week.

Serbo-Croatian

Serbo-Croatian Basic Course
Produced by the National Foreign Affairs Training Center

The Serbo-Croatian Basic Course uses a "standard" form of Serbo-Croatian understood throughout the former Yugoslavia with accepted regional variations in vocabulary and pronunciation. Basic sentences and conversation drills in the text are in both Latin and Cyrillic alphabets. The course is presented in two parts, each containing 25 units. Many of the units contain dialogues, grammar and cultural notes, question-and-answer drills, situational drills, and grammatical drills. The lessons are intended to give beginners a useful oral command of the language and a reading knowledge somewhat broader than their speaking ability.

Spanish Basic Course
Produced by the National Foreign Affairs Training Center
The Spanish Basic Course in Latin American dialect prepares students to function effectively in conversations. Pronunciation, inflection, and intonation are heavily stressed. The text material has accompanying phonetic spellings written in Spanish.
Units 1-15 introduce gender present tense of verbs whose infinitives end in "ar," "er," and "ir," the irregular verbs "estar," "ser," and "haber," adjectives, possessives, present perfect and present progressive forms, and object pronouns.
Units 16-30 present supplemental readings, past tenses, irregular verbs, and reflexive pronouns.
Units 31-45 introduce nominalized verbs and adjectives, numbers, past progressive and present subjunctive verb forms, days of the week, months, and colors.
Units 46-55 drop the phonetic spellings, introduce past, past perfect and present perfect subjunctives, conditional tenses, the passive voices, and noun-forming suffixes.

Sinhalese

Colloquial Sinhalese
Produced by the National Foreign Affairs Training Center
The Colloquial Sinhalese course features the essential grammar of Sinhalese or Sinhala, the official language of Sri Lanka. The course introduces the colloquial variety of spoken Sinhalese, which is used by all social and educational levels in conversation. It represents primarily a variety spoken by educated speakers of the south-western coastal regions, but dialect differences are sufficiently small for it to be understood anywhere, and students who learn it can quickly adjust to the speech of the other areas. The text is in two parts. The first includes 24 lessons, with conversations, grammars, exercises and review exercises. Part two has twelve additional lessons, a summary of inflected forms, and cumulative English-Sinhalese and Sinhalese-English glossaries. Early lessons make use of romanized transcription, but the Sinhala script is introduced, and after lesson 12 material is in that script.

TwI

TwI Basic Course
Produced by the National Foreign Affairs Training Center
Approximately 6 million West Africans, principally those living in southern Ghana, speak Twi. Since it is a tone language and each syllable in a word has its own tone or pitch, the audiocassettes are an indispensable aid in learning the language. The Twi Basic Course indicates tone by using diacritical marks. Unit one of this course consists of 48 drills of pairs of words that are distinguished by tone or consonant and vowel differences that often cause difficulty for speakers of English. Other units include basic dialogues, notes, and drills such as lexical, substitution, question and answer drills, and pattern.

Yoruba

Yoruba Basic Course
Produced by the National Foreign Affairs Training Center
The major language of Western Africa, Yoruba is spoken principally in Nigeria. The Yoruba Basic Course is divided into a number of parts. First there are three series of tone drills that concentrate respectively on the tone patterns of short vowels in short utterances, the tone patterns of long or double vowels in short utterances, and the tone patterns of longer utterances. Following the tone drills is a series of 49 lesson units. Of these the first 20 introduce and drill those aspects of the grammar that involve changes in tone and vowel length. Notes and exercises accompany each unit. A series of sentences in the style of a phrase book follows the lesson units. Many of the units include dialogues, notes, exercises, and supplemental material.

Multilingual Dictionaries

Multilingual Military Dictionary
This dictionary contains about 200,000 items in six (seven) languages (English, French, German, Hungarian, Italian, Russian, and Spanish) arranged under about 18,500 English headings. (Not all items are translated into Spanish.) The dictionary includes both NATO and former Warsaw Pact terms and is the equivalent of 28 bilingual dictionaries. Component parts of expressions consisting of several words appear as independent items in the language indexes (important for compound words in German and Hungarian). The dictionary has multilingual display and works with other applications through the clipboard. The order of languages can be altered at a keystroke, so the user can translate any of the languages to any other of the languages.

Multilingual Space Dictionary
This dictionary contains 2,596 terms in fifteen languages (Arabic, Bulgarian, Chinese, English, French, German, Hindi, Hungarian, Italian, Japanese, Polish, Portuguese, Rumanian, Russian, Spanish, Turkish), a total of almost 39,000 items and the equivalent of 120 bilingual dictionaries. Component parts of expressions consisting of several words appear as independent items in the language indexes (important for compound words in German and Hungarian). The dictionary has multilingual display and works with other applications through the clipboard. The order of languages can be altered at a keystroke, so the user can translate any of the languages to any other of the languages.

About the National Audiovisual Center
The National Audiovisual Center provides a central outlet for federally produced audio, video, multimedia, computer, and print products. It offers more than 9,000 federally produced titles in a wide range of subjects. Besides language materials, our collection includes training materials for business, occupational safety and health, fire and EMS service, and law enforcement. Our holdings also include titles for professional and personal enrichment in history, health, medicine, natural resources, and science.

About NTIS
The National Technical Information Service is the central resource for U.S. government scientific, technical, engineering, and business-related information. The collection also contains similar information from non-U.S. government and from domestic and international non-government sources. Each year, NTIS adds more than 100,000 new titles to its collection of approximately 3 million products. The collection includes technical reports, periodicals, databases, computer software, diskettes, CD-ROMs, multimedia, and on-line services.
